Divisive Pick for U.N. Post

Fiery arms control expert Bolton to be ambassador

WASHINGTON | John R. Bolton, a tough-talking arms control official who rarely muffles his views in diplomatic niceties, was chosen Monday by President Bush to be U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Senate Democrats immediately assailed the nomination, arguing that it didn't make sense for the president to pick a diplomat who has sometimes been critical of the world body at a time when mending fences with the international community is imperative. Senate Minority Leader Harry Reid, D-Nev., said Bolton's selection sent "all the wrong signals."

Bolton

Anticipating a possible fight over confirmation — in 2001, Bolton was approved for his current post over the opposition of 43 Democratic senators — Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice noted, "Through our history some of our best ambassadors have been those with strong voices."

In his tenure, Bolton has angered officials in North Korea and China with his hard-edge approach. In fact, the Pyongyang government, furious with his comments, refused to negotiate with him.

Democrats on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee roundly criticized Bolton. Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., said if Bush were serious about reaching out to the world, "why would he choose someone who has expressed such disdain for working with our allies?" BARRY SCHWEID (AP)

MILITARY | Tanks for the Memories Odin Viken of Vassbotna, Norway, awoke Monday thinking he was in an earthquake. Actually, a 26-ton tank had slammed into his house, the military said. The Norwegian tank, part of a 15-nation,

14,000-troop NATO military exercise, went through a wall and partly into the bathroom, Viken said. The military said the accident is being investigated; Viken said the driver told him he lost control after striking an ice patch. (AP) EyeOpeners | Page 2

EARS

He's a Real Airhead

A man in Guilin, China, can blow up balloons and blow out candles with his ears, the Sunday Times reported. Wei Mingtang, 55, a factory worker, discovered more than 30 years ago that his ears leaked air, and he came up with the idea of using them to inflate balloons with the aid of a pipe. During the city's recent Spring Festival Party, Wei demonstrated his ability by blowing out 20 candles in a line within 20 seconds, using a hose leading out from his ears. (EXPRESS)

HUNTING

Bagging Cats

Hunter Mark Smith welcomes wild birds to his property in La Crosse, Wis., but if he sees a cat, he thinks the "invasive" animal should be considered fair game. The 48-year-old firefighter has proposed that hunters in Wisconsin make free-roaming domestic cats an "unprotected species" that could be shot at will by anyone with a small-game license. His proposal will be placed before hunters April 11 at the Wisconsin Conservation Congress spring hearings conducted in each of the state's 72 counties. Smith's proposal has horrified cat lovers, but is seen by others as a way to stop cats from killing wild birds. Up to 219 million birds are killed by rural cats in Wisconsin each year, according to University of Wisconsin-Madison wildlife ecology professor Stanley Temple. (AP)

CRYOGENICS

Party Like It's 2099

Over the last three years, the cryogenically frozen body of a Norwegian man has become the focus of a quirky winter festival in Nederland, Colo. The body of "Grandpa" Bredo Morstoele, who died in 1989, was frozen by his grandson, Trygve Bauge, and stored in a shed in hopes of being revived or cloned someday; the town began celebrating "Frozen Dead Guy Days" in 2002. Now Morstoele's daughter wants Norway's

King Harald V and Queen Sonja to help her get a visa to be parade marshal at the event. The royals also were invited to visit and "partake in the fun." Bauge returned to Norway in 1994, but a caretaker has continued replenishing the ice in the shed when necessary. (AP)

UNDER FIRE: Michael Jackson waves to supporters as he leaves the Santa Barbara County Courthouse, with his mother, Katherine, in Santa Maria, Calif., on Monday.

Brother of Jackson's Accuser Details Abuse

Teen alleges in trial that star groped boy, showed them porn

SANTA MARIA, CALIF. | The younger brother of Michael Jackson's accuser described for jurors in graphic detail how he twice saw the pop star grope the child while the young boy lay sleeping in Jackson's bed at his Neverland Ranch.

The brother also testified Monday that Jackson showed them Internet sex sites, gave them wine, slept in bed with them and appeared before them naked and sexually aroused at the pop star's Neverland ranch.

The 14-year-old witness said the molestation occurred shortly after

Jackson had shown the boys sexually explicit magazines that he kept in a suitcase in his bedroom.

The boy said that after seeing Jackson with his hand in his brother's underwear he witnessed another episode two days later. He did not state the dates of the incidents.

Jackson, 46, is accused of molesting a 13-year-old cancer survivor at Neverland, giving him alcohol and conspiring to hold the family captive to get them to rebut a damaging February 2003 TV documentary in which Jackson said he allowed children to sleep in his bedroom.

The defense is expected to attack the account as fiction designed by the children's mother to get money from the pop star. LINDA DEUTSCH (AP)

EPA Sets New Lead Rules

Stricter testing and reporting on drinking water to be required

WASHINGTON | Stricter monitoring and reporting of problems with lead in drinking water will be required of utilities, states, schools and child care facilities, the Environmental Protection Agency said Monday.

EPA officials said they found few such problems nationally, but were moving to impose stricter requirements in 1991 lead and copper regulations, starting early next year, because of lead in drinking water found in 2002 in the D.C. area.

Those problems gained widespread attention two years later, and residents complained that the city had done little to alert them.

The EPA proposes that utilities better control corrosion in pipes and notify states at least 60 days before making changes in treatment. Utilities also would notify residents of any testing within a home or facility. Lead service lines that don't meet requirements would be re-examined after any major changes to drinking water treatment.

Also being updated is the agency's 1994 guidance on testing for lead in schools' drinking water.

The EPA said its review shows current regulations are adequately protecting more than 96 percent of water systems that serve 3,300 people or more. In the past three years, the agency said, there have been 14 water systems serving some 50,000 people that exceeded EPA's drinking water lead standard.

The EPA's regulations also are intended to improve control of lead service lines and customer awareness of problems. JOHN HEILPRIN (AP)

Study: Aspirin Aids Women Differently

ORLANDO, FLA. | In a stunning example of gender differences in medicine, a major new study found that aspirin helps healthy women avoid strokes but makes no difference in their risk of heart attacks unless they're 65 or older — the polar opposite of how the drug affects men.

Aspirin is recommended now for both men and women at high risk of heart disease. Many doctors have assumed it also prevented heart problems in healthy women because of research showing it helped healthy men avoid cardiac maladies. (AP)

University President Resigns

Hoffman tells Colo. board she'll step down amid ongoing turmoil

DENVER | University of Colorado President Elizabeth Hoffman resigned Monday amid a football recruiting scandal and a national controversy over an activist professor who compared victims of the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks to a notorious Nazi.

Hoffman

"It appears to me it is in the university's best interest that I remove the issue of my future from the debate so that nothing inhibits CU's ability to successfully create the bright future it so deserves," Hoffman wrote to the Board of Regents in a letter.

An independent commission reported last year that Colorado players used sex, alcohol and marijuana as recruiting tools.

And in February, administrators took the first steps toward a possible dismissal of professor Ward Churchill, who likened World Trade Center victims to Nazi Adolf Eichmann in an essay he penned after the attacks. JON SANCHE (AP)

Stewart Back on the Job

In teary speech to staff, lifestyle maven relays experiences in prison

NEW YORK | Fighting back tears at times, Martha Stewart told cheering employees on her first day back at work Monday that prison was a life-changing experience that made her realize her company may have been out of touch with ordinary Americans.

"I love all of you from the bottom of my heart — I'm really glad to be home," she said, choking up at the end of her speech.

MARY ALTAFFER/AP

Stewart waves as she receives a standing ovation from her staff in New York.

Stewart, 63, told the employees that she "learned a great deal about our country" in meeting a cross-section of Americans at the federal women's prison at Alderson, W.Va. She said that her experience would lead to changes at her homemaking empire that would it more accessible to ordinary people.

The company was perhaps too focused on the technical aspects of entertaining and cooking, she said, and not enough on why people need to nurture and take care of each other.

Counting on a bounce from Stewart's return, investors have pushed up her company's stock to triple the level it was when she was convicted one year ago of lying about a stock sale. SARA KUGLER (AP)

St. James Davis, 62, lost all the fingers from both hands, an eye, part of his nose, cheek, lips and part of his buttocks in the ferocious attack, his wife said over the weekend on NBC's "Today Show." A Kern County Sheriff's commander also said Davis' genitals were mauled.

Italy Mourns Officer Killed by U.S. Fire

Calipari's attempt to save ex-hostage 'moved the whole country'

ROME | Italy paid homage to an intelligence officer killed by U.S. fire in Iraq while escorting an ex-hostage to freedom, with a state funeral in a Rome basilica drawing as many as 20,000 mourners.

The killing of Nicola Calipari, 50, at a checkpoint in Baghdad fueled anti-American sentiment in a country that was strongly opposed to war in Iraq, and prompted Premier Silvio Berlusconi, a staunch supporter of the U.S.-led military campaign, to demand that Washington provide a full explanation of the shooting.

"A grateful and admiring Italy bows to its hero, the victim of a war without a name," said the newspaper of the Vatican, which also opposed the war. "His gesture has moved the whole country."

President Carlo Azeglio Ciampi, Berlusconi and U.S. Ambassador Mel Sembler were among the dignitaries attending the service. Before the funeral, Calipari's body lay in state at Rome's Vittoriano monument, with 100,000 people streaming past his coffin, according to police estimates. The body had been returned Saturday night.

Syria Shifts Its Soldiers In Lebanon

Pulls troops eastward; leaders still vague on complete withdrawal

MDEIREJ, LEBANON | Syrian soldiers loaded trucks with furniture and other supplies Monday and drove east from the Lebanese mountain posts they have held for decades, the first signs of a redeployment to Lebanon's Bekaa Valley announced by the neighboring nations' leaders.

The pullback began as more than 70,000 Lebanese thronged Beirut in the biggest demonstration yet against Syria. The protesters marched to the site of a Feb. 14 bombing that killed former Prime Minister Rafik Hariri and touched off the street protests that drove Lebanon's pro-Syrian government to resign. Many Lebanese hold the Syrian government responsible for Hariri's death. It denies any involvement.

Syrian President Bashar Assad and his Lebanese counterpart, Emile Lahoud, met in Damascus to outline plans for shifting Syrian troops closer to Syria by the end of March. But they were vague on the timing of a complete withdrawal.

The plan was unlikely to satisfy the Lebanese opposition and the international community, which have demanded that all 14,000 Syrian soldiers withdraw. Washington rejected the redeployment as insufficient. (AP)

Violence in Iraq Kills 33; Dutch Complete Pullout

BAGHDAD | Iraqi insurgents set off bombs and fired rocket-propelled grenades and automatic weapons at military convoys, checkpoints and police patrols in a spate of violence Monday that killed 33 people.

The terror group led by Abu Musab al-Zarqawi claimed responsibility for much of the bloodshed.

The wave of violence came as Dutch troops ended their mission in the southern city of Samawa and turned command of the area to the British. The Dutch government last year decided to pull out its final 350 troops, despite requests from Britain and the United States.

Meanwhile, Bulgaria demanded that the United States investigate what appeared to be a friendly fire incident Friday that killed one of its 460 soldiers in Iraq. (AP)

Bolivian Leader Moves to Resign

LA PAZ, BOLIVIA | President Carlos Mesa submitted his resignation to Congress on Monday after warning that a wave of protests against his 15-month-old government may soon leave Bolivia's largest cities isolated by road blockades.

Crews respond to a new mercury threat at school in Georgetown

WASHINGTON | Cardozo High School will remain closed to students Tuesday — and possibly the rest of the week — as the Environmental Protection Agency brings in more experts, cleaning devices and air monitors to rid the building of mercury.

Soon after the announcement was made, hazardous materials teams responded to Hardy Middle School in Georgetown Monday, where authorities said a thermometer broke in a science class and there was a small mercury spill.

Seven students and two adults were in the classroom, said D.C. Fire and Emergency Medical Services Department spokesman Alan Etter.

Etter said none showed signs of elevated mercury exposure.

D.C. Public Schools spokeswoman Roxanne Evans also said it was a small incident. She expected Hardy to be open Tuesday, though a final decision was pending.

It was the latest in a series of mercury scares in city schools. Cardozo has had three spills since Feb. 23, the most recent of which happened Sunday.

With the cleanup continuing, students will be bused to the University of the District of Columbia for a partial day of classes Tuesday. School officials expected the cleanup to take three to five days.

Meanwhile, the EPA said 24 people were working 12-hour shifts to check for mercury and clean the basement, up from 16 used in the previous incidents.

Inmate Charged in Prison-Bus Death

BALTIMORE | An inmate who killed his cellmate a year ago and warned a judge that he might kill again was indicted Monday for strangling a 20-year-old inmate aboard a guarded prison bus.

A Baltimore County grand jury indicted Kevin G. Johns Jr., 22, on a single count of first-degree murder in the death of Philip Eugene Parker Jr., the state's attorney's office said.

Baltimore County Assistant State's Attorney S. Ann Brobst said she would seek the death penalty against Johns, a twice-convicted murderer who told a judge the day before Parker's death that he would kill again unless he got psychiatric help.

Prison officials have said Parker, who was serving 3½ years for unarmed robbery and a weapons violation, was killed early Feb. 2 by one or more inmates aboard a bus carrying 35 prisoners in handcuffs and leg irons. (AP)

Boeing CEO Gets Booted After Affair

Citing Stonecipher's 'poor judgment,' board asks for his resignation

CHICAGO | Boeing Co. CEO Harry Stonecipher, brought back from retirement 15 months ago to boost the aerospace manufacturer's tainted image, has been forced out because of a new ethics scandal involving an affair he had this year with a female company executive.

In a stunning announcement that left the exact circumstances behind the ouster unclear, Boeing said Monday that Stonecipher, 68, resigned at the board's request a day earlier for improper behavior while carrying out the consensual relationship.

Chairman Lew Platt said the affair by itself did not violate the code of business conduct at the company, where a string of defense scandals has raised questions about the way it obtains its lucrative contracts. But an internal investigation that started because of an employee's complaint discovered "some issues of poor judgment" involving Stonecipher, who is married. Platt refused repeated requests to be more specific and did not identify the female executive, who he said remains with Boeing.

"The board concluded that the facts reflected poorly on Harry's judgment and would impair his ability to lead the company," he said.

Attempts to reach Stonecipher for comment were unsuccessful. (AP)

Embattled Riggs CEO Allbritton Resigns

WASHINGTON | The chairman and CEO of embattled Riggs Bank's parent company unexpectedly resigned Monday, relinquishing his position and board seat in a move that strips the bank's biggest shareholder of any direct representation on the board or executive control of the bank.

The surprise announcement by Robert Allbritton came a few days after he and his family agreed to pay $1 million into a new $9 million fund for victims of former Chilean dictator Augusto Pinochet, who is said to have hidden money in Riggs with the help of bank officials. The bank is paying the remaining $8 million.

Riggs pleaded guilty in January to a criminal felony charge of failing to report suspicious transactions to authorities and has agreed to pay $41 million in civil and criminal fines to the U.S. government.

Allbritton, 37, assumed control of the bank several years ago from his father, Joe Allbritton. The family, a powerful local dynasty, collectively owns nearly 43 percent of the bank's stock. (AP)

Work it Out

Joy of Motion Dance Center

ATLAS PERFORMING ARTS CENTER

(1333 H St. NE, Metrobus: X2, X6, X8) Opens March 14.
For more information: atlasarts.org, joyofmotion.com or call 202-399-7998.

WHAT IT IS: Joy of Motion Dance Center is spreading its wings beyond Bethesda and Northwest D.C. to open its fourth location March 14 along the H Street Corridor. The new center's three dance spaces sit directly on the sidewalk behind huge, soon-to-be frosted windows. "We'll share light and movement," said studio manager William Parker. "We'll bring the energy literally into the streets." As at its other locations, this Joy of Motion will offer an array of classes for adults and children, including ballet, pilates, hip-hop, yoga, ballroom, belly dance and jazz. For two weeks, many adult classes will be offered on a drop-in basis, allowing people to figure out what they're interested in before committing for the spring semester.

WHERE IT IS: When the art deco Atlas Movie Theatre complex opened in 1938, it was a chic spot to catch a flick in the bustling H Street NE neighborhood, but after economic troubles in the 1960s followed by the race riots, Studio director William Parker shows off the Joy of Motion Dance Center's newest location, the Atlas Performing Arts Center on H Street NE. It opens next week.

the theater and other businesses shut down. Now the area is in the midst of a revitalization, with the Atlas as an artistic core. In addition to Joy of Motion, Atlas will also house ACTCo, the only professional black theater company in the city, as well as cabaret performances and other events.

ON TAP: The week of April 16 brings the official opening of Atlas; open houses will feature performances and free classes. Parker promises other activities to come, including special seminars on topics like baby yoga and open floor nights — basically free-for-all dance sessions. "It's like an open mic night hosted by our instructors," Parker said. So even if classes aren't a good fit, you can still revel in the joy of motion. VICKY HALLETT

Nationals Steal Another Victory

Armas struggles in team's 4th comeback win

NATIONALS | Call them the comeback kids of spring.

The Washington Nationals overcame a three-run deficit in the sixth inning to the Detroit Tigers on Monday for a 6-5 victory. Each of Washington's (4-1) exhibition wins has been come-from-behind.

Tony Armas Jr. had a lackluster start for the Nationals after pitching two scoreless innings in their opener last week.

Armas allowed three runs on five hits and two walks while striking out two over three innings. He was 2-4 with a 4.88 ERA last season, his first after shoulder surgery, and his career record is 32-41.

"I don't want to put too much pressure on him, but if he wins 12, 13, 14 or 15 games, that would be outstanding," Nationals manager Frank Robinson said.

Armas said his goals don't include a certain number of wins. "I just want to be healthy," he said.

The Nationals also made their first round of cuts, sending 11 players to their minor league camp, leaving 49 on their roster. (AP)

Ponson Benched Indefinitely Due To Visa Problems

ORIOLES | Baltimore Orioles pitcher Sidney Ponson was scratched from his first spring training appearance Monday because of visa problems associated with his court case in Aruba.

Ponson

Ponson was slated to start against the Florida Marlins, but the right-hander learned Monday morning that he could not pitch in a game in which admission is charged, according to rules set in place by the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

In his stead, James Baldwin pitched four innings of three-hit ball in a 5-0 win for the Orioles.

Ponson is accused of hitting an Aruban judge in the face on a beach Christmas day.

He has agreed to make a charitable donation and provide community service, two stipulations of the settlement, but Ponson still must come to an agreement with the man he punched before he can pitch in a game with the Orioles.

Rolle Inks Big Contract With Ravens

RAVENS | Cornerback Samari Rolle has a lofty goal now that he's signed a $30.5 million, six-year contract — including an $11 million signing bonus — with the Baltimore Ravens.

Rolle, who replaced Gary Baxter after his defection to the Cleveland Browns, wants to form the top cornerback tandem in the NFL with All-Pro Chris McAlister.

"I think we'll be No. 1 if we handle our business," Rolle said Monday.

Despite a spinal condition, Samari Rolle landed a $30.5 million deal.

Temple's Khadija Bowens celebrates with teammates after their 70-62 victory over George Washington in the Atlantic 10 championship on Monday evening.

Temple Drops GW to Claim Atlantic-10 Crown

WOMEN'S HOOPS | Candice Dupree scored 21 points and No. 15 Temple beat George Washington 70-62 to win its second straight Atlantic 10 tournament title and earn an automatic bid in the NCAA tournament.

The Owls (27-3) won their 24th straight, the longest winning streak in the nation.

After trailing by as many as 16, Jessica Simmonds scored 18 of her 22 points in the second half to help the Colonials (22-8) draw to 56-52 with

Temple went back to Dupree in the clutch — after not scoring for the first 12 minutes of the second half and the conference player of the year hit a jumper in the lane and two free throws with 1:24 left to put the Owls back ahead by eight. The Colonials never got closer than six the rest of the way.

Although technically the visitors, the loss was George Washington's first on its home court in 22 games. (AP)

Moss: A Pain Worth Having

ONLY ONE PLAYER IN NFL HISTORY has tallied more receiving yards in his first six seasons than future Hall of Famer Jerry Rice. That same person is the only player to gain at least 1,000 receiving yards in each of his first six seasons. And the Minnesota Vikings officially traded him March 2.

Randy Moss was sent to Oakland for linebacker Napoleon Harris, the No. 7 selection in April's draft and an additional late-round pick. But Moss will be missed in Minnesota, despite his often unpopular behavior.

Moss' problems have been well-documented.

From his literal run-in with a traffic officer to his early departure from the Vikings' Jan. 2 game against the Washington Redskins, Moss has been a nuisance on and off the field.

His biggest fault came in 2001, when he admitted he played only when he wanted to. But that was when he was stuck in Cris Carter's shadow.

Since 2001, his downfield blocking has improved greatly, and since Carter's departure, Moss had stepped up as a leader.

If Moss was truly uninterested in playing and playing well, he would have missed a game before last season. And he wouldn't have put up such massive career numbers: 90 touchdowns and more than 9,000 yards receiving.

It's no secret that Moss has been a handful, but there's no question that he's worth the trouble. The Raiders seem to think so. It won't take long for the Vikings to feel that way again, too.

Redskins Re-Sign H-Back Sellers

REDSKINS | The Washington Redskins agreed to terms Monday with special teams ace and backup H-back Mike Sellers.

Sellers finished second on the team with 29 special teams tackles last season. He also had one reception for 14 yards and will return as the backup to H-back Chris Cooley.

He has 25 catches for 274 yards and six touchdowns in 54 career NFL games. (AP)

Rolle, an eight-year veteran and a 2000 Pro Bowl selection with the Tennessee Titans, is known for his speed and good hands.

Rolle and the Ravens were dismissive of medical questions that arose during his visit to the Kansas City Chiefs. Rolle was born with a spinal condition called stenosis, which was discovered during his physical with the Chiefs. However, Rolle didn't fail his physical in Kansas City or Baltimore. (AP)

Paul Suspended For His Low Blow

COLLEGE HOOPS | Wake Forest star Chris Paul was suspended by the school for one game Monday for hitting North Carolina State's Julius Hodge in the groin during a game.

Paul, a sophomore point guard, will miss Friday's Atlantic Coast Conference tournament quarter-final, the school said Monday. The Demon Deacons, seeded second, will play the winner of Thursday's Florida State-N.C. State game.

Paul will be allowed to practice Tuesday and could return to the line-up Saturday if Wake Forest advances to the tournament semifinals.

Paul apologized to Hodge, N.C.

29-1 Illinois Remains No. 1

Illini not unanimous pick following first defeat of the season

COLLEGE HOOPS | Illinois' first loss of the season wasn't enough to knock the Illini out of the top spot in the AP poll.

Illinois was on top of The Associated Press' college basketball poll on Monday for the 14th straight week, but for the first time in five weeks the Illini were not a unanimous selection, receiving 48 first-place votes and 1,725 points from the national media panel.

Sunday's 65-64 loss to Ohio State ended any hopes of a perfect season for Illinois (29-1), which was trying to become the first team to reach the NCAA tournament without a loss since UNLV in 1991.

North Carolina (26-3), which needed a game-closing 11-0 run to beat Duke 75-73 on Sunday, stayed No. 2 for the third straight week. The Tar Heels had the other 22 votes for No. 1 and 1,701 points.

Wake Forest (26-4), which needed a buzzer-beater by Chris Paul to get past North Carolina State 55-53 on Sunday night, moved up one spot to No. 3. Kentucky (23-4), which lost 53-52 to Florida on Sunday, dropped one place to fourth. (AP)

Income Tax Refund

Dear Betsy:

I filed my taxes online a few weeks ago and was expecting a big refund that I was going to use to pay off some high interest credit cards. I just received a letter in the mail that says my tax refund has been "garnished" and sent to my student loan company instead. I never authorized this when I filed my taxes and am having trouble getting through to the company I used to file my return. What can I do?

Sincerely,
Brian C., Alexandria, VA

Dear Brian:

I'm afraid that the answer I have for you is most likely not the news you were hoping for. Based on the information you provided, I'm going to assume that you have federal student loans that have defaulted. Unfortunately, if you default on a federal student loan, one of the "tools" available to the agency handling the loan is the ability to garnish, or seize, any federal or state income tax refunds that may be due to you. This can occur whether you file your taxes online, send them in the mail, or use a tax preparation service.

It's very unlikely that your loan company will return your refund if you do owe on a defaulted loan. What you may want to do at this point is contact them to make future payment arrangements so that they may not take your refund next year as well. Some companies will continue to take your tax refunds annually until the defaulted loan is rehabilitated, consolidated or paid in full, but others may be willing to stop this process if the borrower is sticking to an agreed monthly payment amount. If nothing else, making such arrangements may stop your loan company from using some other "tools" they have available in federal student loan collection, including wage garnishment and court judgments. It certainly doesn't hurt to have the conversation!

Improving Student Loan Situation

Dear Betsy,
Some years ago I took out two Stafford loans that totaled less than $10,000. I am trying to pay them although I haven't been consistent over the years and am now in default. I am trying to get my credit back on track so when my daughter goes to college, I will be able to co-sign for her. I would also like to buy a house soon but I know before I do that I need to pay these student loans off. My question is what, if any, are my options? I have been in and out of jobs for a while now. Please help.

Thank you
Raya, Washington, DC

Dear Raya,

Your best bet would be to attempt to rehabilitate your defaulted loans. To do this, you make between 9 and 12 consecutive, on-time payments to the loan holder. Once completed, the loan will be taken out of default and sold back to a lender. The best part about this is that the default on your credit will be removed by the guarantee agency and you will again become eligible for deferment and lower payment options if you ever run into trouble with your payments in the future. Now this won't completely repair your credit (the delinquencies prior to the actual default will likely remain), but it shows creditors "good faith" that you went through this long process and succeeded.

To begin, contact the loan holder and ask about rehabilitation. They should send you a form to sign and will want to discuss payment amounts with you.

Please let me know if you have further questions. Good luck!

Robin Williams gets back behind the mic for animated 'Robots'

VOICEOVERS | "Robots" is the latest animated feature from Chris Wedge and Blue Sky Studios ("Ice Age"); it's set entirely in a world of mechanical beings.

"Robots" centers on Rodney, a young genius inventor who dreams of helping robots everywhere. He moves to the big city to try and get a job with master inventor Bigweld only to discover that the master has lost his way, replaced by a corporate tyrant with aspirations to build his own brave new world. So Rodney turns to a group of misfit 'bots known as the Rusties to stop the tyrant and restore order.

Funnyman Robin Williams provides the voice of Fender, a motor-mouthed heap of nuts and bolts who can't quite keep his head—and other parts—on straight. Williams is joined by a who's who of celebrity talent, including Halle Berry, Greg Kinnear, Mel Brooks, Drew Carey, Jim Broadbent, Amanda Bynes, Stanley Tucci, Paul Giamatti, Jennifer Coolidge and Ewan McGregor as Rodney.

"Robots" marks Williams' return to the world of feature film animation, following his role in Disney's 1992 "Aladdin" as the voice of the smart-alecky Genie of the Lamp.

Williams is in his element when he is recording, using the script as his guide and going wherever his imagination takes him.

"You can tell when he thinks it's working and when he doesn't," director Wedge observes. "He always read the pages first and he was always thinking, OK, I think that's stuff they can use."

Having worked on "Robots" for roughly two years, he is pleased that the animators were able to incorporate many of his ad-libs into the film, including a rendition of "Singing in the Rain" that he turned into "Singing in the Oil."

"I thought, you'll never get the rights [to use the music], but they did," he said. "I love that number and they did it. It was, like, wild. That's kind of cool." ANGELA

No More Drama for J.Lo

On 'Rebirth,' Lopez would rather dance than cry

MUSIC | After fawning over former then-fiancé Ben Affleck on 2002's "This Is Me... Then," Jennifer Lopez wisely keeps her love life out of the spotlight on her aptly titled fourth disc, "Rebirth" (Epic).

She only alludes to her secretive marriage to salsa king Marc Anthony on a few tracks, most prominently the breezy, Rodney Jerkins' penned-and-produced "I Got U." And there's a hint of lingering heartache in her strained vocals on Timbaland's flute-looped number, "He'll Be Back": "I know better than anybody how it feels to want somebody so bad after you break up."

As with Madonna and Janet, people don't listen to Lopez for the poignant lyrics—she's best when riding a dance groove as on the James Brown-sampled single "Get Right" and the funky club thumper "Whatever You Wanna Do," both courtesy of Beyoncé's "Crazy in Love" scribe Rich Harrison.

Instead of sustaining the frenetic pace of those songs, however, most of the disc features understated yet polished mid-tempo tracks such as the bubbly "I, Love."

The disc's one misstep is the woefully overdone ballad "(Can't Believe) This Is Me," which Lopez penned with Anthony. Overall, "Rebirth" is a satisfying listen, but fans who like their Jenny from the block hot and spicy will be slightly disappointed by the disc's milder dance-pop flavor.

A Gold Mine of Brutality

HBO's 'Deadwood' is back with more bad words and bad deeds

RETURNS | In a fascinating profile of David Milch in the Feb. 14 issue of The New Yorker, the creator of HBO's "Deadwood" explains his intentions.

"I was interested in how people improvised the structures of a society when there was no law to guide them," he said. "How the law developed out of the social impulse to minimize the collateral damage of the taking of revenge."

The series is that studied, that socio-anthropological, that smart. But you could almost miss it on account of "Deadwood's" also being the dirtiest, barbarous, murderous and foul-mouthed work of semfiction in the history of television.

But Milch isn't simply out to shock. He really is interested in exploring the human impulse to form a society, the instinct that in cooperation lies survival. The fact that we are going through a political period in which long agreed-upon notions of civil interdependence are being challenged may be ironic, but it's probably not coincidental.

The real South Dakota town sprang up out of the mud practically overnight. Its promise of gold-field riches was a magnet for dreamers, misfits and many a genus of scum.

In the show, which returned for a second season last Sunday night at 9 p.m., Milch's principal protagonists, both based on real figures, embody two perspectives in that process. Hardware merchant Seth Bullock (Timothy Olyphant) wants law and order, but he does so as much for business goals as from altruism. His major nemesis, brothel owner Al Swearengen (Ian McShane), sees the town's continued wide-openness to be in his crooked best interest.

Time is, of course, on Bullock's side. Deadwood went from snake pit to more or less ordinary town in less than a decade. In the second season's first few episodes, we're already seeing the effect of a larger nation closing in on the lawless mining camp and men like Swearengen and his rival, Cy Tolliver (Powers Boothe), sweating their place in the changing order.

"Deadwood" remains remarkably dense, both in its plotting and its language — the purple prose of the late 19th century shot through and through with blue. Both can make the series a bit hard to follow at times. Interested latecomers would do well to check out HBO Video's recently released first-season DVDs, a handsome, six-disc boxed set whose extras include a documentary about the real Deadwood and an interview with Milch about his research into frontier profanity.

Bid, Bank and Bet on Talent

Performers are the hot commodity on an 'Idol' fantasy site

TAKING STOCK | As Shakespeare almost said, if music be the food of love for "American Idol," play online.

That's the idea behind Idolroo, a free online fantasy game based on Fox's search-for-a-pop-superstar smash. Idolroo is the brainchild of Onroo.com, a Naples, Fla.-based site specializing in fantasy sports games and reality shows.

Group players are given 70 points each at the outset that are used for an online auction to bid on the Ruben and Fantasia wannabes.

And according to Todd Mitchell, founder of Onroo, the auctions can quickly get as nasty as one of Simon Cowell's critiques.

"If you think Anwar [Robinson] has a good chance of winning, you'll bid higher for him. It's amazing how people who have no experience with fantasy games catch on very quickly. At the end of the auction, whoever is the highest bidder is awarded ownership of that contestant," Mitchell said.

From there, players can then buy and trade contestants and pray that the ones they own don't get voted off. The further along your singer gets in the competition, the more points you're awarded.

And who are Idolroo betting on? Country chanteuse Carrie Underwood was the clear favorite, followed by Mario Vazquez, off-beat farmboy Scott Savol, dreadlocked belter Robinson and hard-rocker Bo Bice. DANIEL BUBBEO (NEWSDAY) the accumulation of material wealth is almost as much fun as battling a cast of thousands of monsters.

Some battles can be a bit repetitive, especially when your foes' weakness makes the moves predictable, but many of the boss bad guys are a serious challenge.

Familiar faces return from the

There are two new character classes: shaman and berserker. The shaman is a lizard man with a tail and big teeth who has, among his inventory of spells, the ability to summon a spirit badger ally. The berserker looks like a tiger crossed with a man and specializes in heavy axes at opponents.

AND ... SCENE: Most of the would-be starlets are lousy with high self-esteem.

To Be a Star Or Not to Be

That is the question 10 ambitious pretties face in 'The Starlet'

ACT REAL | Another day, another series in which ambitious young people compete on camera for a hot job.

"The Starlet," which premiered Sunday on the WB, is "American Idol" for actresses. It's also a hard-working piece of Warner cross-promotion, including the mention of "Bonnie and Clyde" (Warner Bros., 1967) in the introduction of judge Faye Dunaway.

Indeed, the series may be seen as a long, public audition for what the producers are pleased to call a "career-launching role on the WB series 'One Tree Hill.'"

They have come from here and there to pursue a movie-star dream, which is not the same as having a burning desire to act — though it seems likely anyone who wanted to be a movie star would like to be a good actor; it helps at awards time.

The 10 young women who begin the game — two go home at the end of the first episode, and so on — have various levels of experience, charisma and talent, but most seem pretty sure of themselves. Some a little too sure: "There is absolutely no question in my mind, there never was, that I would be famous," says one. "I'm going to be the Starlet because I'm smart, I'm beautiful, I'm talented and I always get what I want," says another. "I've always thought of myself as larger than life — I've always known I'm going to be a legend," says a third.

It's impressive in a way, being able not only to think such things but to say them out loud. And though it would be nice to believe that humility is necessary for success in this world — it isn't. In Hollywood, it might even be a liability.

The "screen tests" are judged by Dunaway, casting director Joe Middleton and actress Vivica A. Fox, though Dunaway is the queen bee and designated hard-nose. "Don't call us, we'll call you" is her cold address to the night's losers.

Like most such shows, it's stupidly entertaining and easy to watch.

Outstanding Distributor Mike Cunningham

"I get on the train at Capital Heights Metro and Mike Cunningham is one of the kindest people I've encountered in a long time. Every morning without fail, he greets me and my 4 year old son with a smile. It is truly a pleasure to be greeted by such a wonderful person every morning, it makes my day."

Television

DIGGING UP DIRT: Because TV executives can't stumble across a good thing without driving it into the ground until we're all sick of it, expect Fox to launch its own crime-solving forensics drama. The pilot of "Bones" will star Emily Deschanel of "Boogeyman."

The Vision Thing

A blinded hero cop, resentful colleagues, one gritty new show

DEBUTS | In "Blind Justice" (10 p.m., ABC), Ron Eldard plays Detective Jim Dunbar, a hero cop wounded in the line of duty. This being a Steven Bochco show, we're shown Dunbar's fateful gunfight in all its gruesome glory.

The shooting leaves Dunbar sightless, but he doesn't just want to retire and collect disability. He sues the NYPD to get his job back.

The debut episode follows Dunbar as he attempts to break into the closed clique of his new precinct house. His gruff colleagues consider him a toxic combination of bad luck and bad press. His first partner, Karen Bettancourt (Marisol Nichols) resents having to babysit the blind guy.

But Dunbar wastes little time demonstrating how he has learned to compensate for his sightlessness with enhanced powers of smell and hearing as well as advanced deductive abilities.

Dunbar denies he's flirting with Bettancourt, but we know he is. Again, this is a Bochco show, so it's only a matter of time before they partner up in a more intimate setting than a squad car. I just hope his seeing-eye dog doesn't have to watch that. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

RESEARCH INVOLVING SOCIAL INTERACTION

Adult Male volunteers who are comfortable socializing with others are needed to participate in a research study involving social interaction sponsored by the National Institute of Mental Health. This research is being conducted at the Maryland Center for Anxiety Disorders, Department of Psychology, University of Maryland, College Park.

Within a single session, individuals will participate in a clinical interview, complete several brief questionnaires, and engage in several social interaction tasks with research team members. Additionally, some volunteers will be asked to participate in an abbreviated follow-up session approximately two weeks after the first session.

Interested males should contact the Maryland Center for Anxiety Disorders at (301) 405-3074. A brief phone interview will be conducted to determine eligibility.

Those who participate will receive financial compensation for each visit

Help prevent Anthrax for Future Generations.

Be a Part of this Important Medical Research Study

A major outbreak of life-threatening anthrax would not just impact how we live today—it would change the lives of generations to come. To combat the threat of anthrax in the past, a vaccine has been used.

Now local doctors are conducting a medical research study to evaluate an investigational, second-generation vaccine for the prevention of anthrax.

You may qualify if you are:

- 18-55 years of age, and
- Currently in good health

Qualified participants will receive a study-related medical evaluation and study vaccine at no cost. Participants will not be exposed to anthrax as part of this study. Reimbursement for time and travel will be provided.

To learn if you qualify to see a study doctor, call toll-free:

ADVERTISING

SUPERVISOR ADVERTISING SERVICE TEAM

The Advertising Sales Department of The Washington Post is recruiting for an experienced Supervisor to oversee the daily operation of its Classified Advertising Service team. We are very interested in reviewing candidates with a strong management background, including a solid track record in developing and motivating effective work teams and the capacity to handle multiple priorities in a high volume, deadline-driven work environment. Strong interpersonal and leadership skills, experience in customer service, conflict resolution, consensus building, problem solving, production, and quality control are all critical to success in this position. 3-5 years supervisory/management experience and some familiarity with advertising sales and credit, collections and/or contracts is strongly preferred.

This position is responsible for: setting individual and group performance goals for our Advertising Service Representatives; scheduling and managing the Team's daily work flow; working closely with the Sales and Service teams to solve customers' questions; and selecting, training, and coaching staff. This position will supervise ad ordering, trafficking of ad materials, and customer service and billing.

Think ahead.

Thinking about where you can make the most impact on your career? Think Verizon Wireless. We have the most reliable network, the best customer service, and the team that everyone envies. Opportunities exist for:

Business Support Center Coordinator

You'll take charge of many functions in our Business Support Center. Day to day customer management, maintaining billing records, handling calls and customer service inquiries... you'll be a crucial part of our team. We're looking for a detail-oriented and friendly person who can provide the highest level of customer service, meet our goals for quality and accuracy, and be proactive in recommending any needed improvements.

Own Your Career.

A college degree and bilingual skills are highly desirable for all positions. We offer a total rewards package that includes highly competitive compensation, health benefits from day one, and much more, including 401(k), profit sharing, tuition reimbursement for continuing education, and incentive plans.

Eco-friendly building gets easier, cheaper as products multiply

The floor-to-ceiling glass that encloses Al Rosen's den and living room feels cool, despite blazing weather. This is triple-glazed glass filled with argon gas, which lets in sunlight — saving electricity and lightbulbs — and insulates against heat in the summer and cold in the winter.

When Al and Myra Rosen bought this house in 1997, they began an eco-remodeling effort that continues to this day, from chlorine-free purified water out of a low-flow kitchen faucet to a couch built from wheat board and formaldehyde-free foam and upholstered with untreated cotton fabric. Its pillows are filled with kapok, a natural seed fiber.

Green building isn't the same thing it was a decade ago, when eco-consciousness first began to drift into the mainstream. As the

Green House

Rosens testify, living green is no longer a kind of countercultural penance in which one must forgo comfort, personal style and savings in order to give back to the environment. In the last five years, green architecture firms, publications and building materials have leapt from relative obscurity to the forefront of culture and design. Even big home improvement chains such as Home Depot and Lowe's now stock green materials — say, certified wood harvested from renewable sources — and independent green building stores are opening across the nation.

One reason for green's newfound popularity is health. The Rosens' first used, the excess energy feeds back into the grid and the meter actually runs backward, reducing the utility bill. By Al Rosen's math, they should recoup their investment in about 10 years — and start saving money.

Nearly all the materials in the house are of natural origin instead of petrochemical alternatives, and paints, sealers, adhesives and coatings are low in toxicity and environmentally sensitive.

Indications suggest building in general is going to get greener, and quickly. Green products are becoming available at cheaper prices, said Alex Wilson of the newsletter Environmental Building News, including products such as paints with less off-gassing, fiberglass with more recycled content, shingles made with recycled plastic and more efficient ventilation systems. ## Metro

Getting Around

Washington Post staff writer LYNDESE LAYTON was online Monday to discuss Metro seating and bus drivers on cell phones | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

What are the odds of the Metro Board voting to remove some or most of the seats in rail cars?

I think the odds are good that the board will approve a pilot plan to remove some of the seats on a handful of rail cars. They've been mulling the idea of changing the interiors of the rail cars for years but a recent recommendation from outside experts seems to have finally struck a chord with the board.

I have noticed that bus drivers on my route frequently use their cell phones for personal calls while driving. Why isn't this practice illegal?

This practice is illegal and also pretty widespread. The problem is enforcement. Although the transit police say officers ride buses, in six years of daily riding, I've never seen one on my bus. Have you?

Metro suggests that you note the location, time of day and bus number (which is displayed up at the front near the driver) and report an operator who uses a cell phone.

Metro supposedly opens at 7 a.m. on Saturdays. Last Saturday, I was at Dupont at 7 a.m. and when an employee finally opened the gates at 7:08, we found that the first train would arrive in another 17 minutes.

You just stumbled onto a truth-in-advertising issue. Metro opens at 7 a.m. on Saturdays, yes. But that's when the trains depart the terminal stations. If you're boarding anywhere else along the line, you have to wait for that first train to reach you. The same is true for weekday service, which starts at 5 a.m.

Why is the I7th and I streets entrance to Farragut West closed on weekends? It makes frequenting nearby restaurants, etc., difficult, especially since the next entrance is a couple of blocks away and there is no information to direct you there.

I'm told it's a cost saving measure (one less station manager required if the entrance is closed). But geez, I agree that a sign to explain that would make a lot of sense.

Parking Policy Inconvenient

THE NEW METRO parking policy that begins March 14 seems to do more harm than good. What's the point of not letting a driver in with low funds on their SmartTrip cards?

Will there be a vending machine at each of the entrances, or will Metro really require parking customers to park at the Kiss & Ride to refill their cards? If Metro doesn't make some changes, this will be a total inconvenience to people who park at rail stations.

'Say It Like You Mean It,' Demands Petulant Toronto

JA RULE apologized to the city of Toronto Monday after pleading guilty to assault in an altercation at a downtown nightclub last year. "I'm just sorry about my actions," said Ja Rule, whose real name is Jeffrey

Atkins. He received a $1,200 fine after pleading guilty to assault for the incident, which took place at La Rouge Nightclub in June 2004. He had been facing a more serious charge of assault causing bodily harm. "Hopefully this was a one-time outburst," Justice W.P. Bassel told him. (AP)

INJURIES

Ed McMahon Injured, Hospitalized After Fall

ED MCMAHON, Johnny Carson's former sidekick, was hospitalized after a fall in his Beverly Hills home left him with a mild concussion and a gash in his head that required stitches, his publicist said Monday. "Mr. McMahon's prognosis is excellent and he is expected to be released from the Los Angeles-area hospital in the next few days," spokeswoman Susan DuBow said. McMahon, who turned 82 on Sunday, tripped and fell Friday afternoon, DuBow said. (AP)

The go-to guy for centenarians is celebrating a milestone: WILLARD SCOTT has been associated with NBC's "Today" for 25 years. His first day on the job was March 10, 1980. Scott, the show's former weatherman, now appears twice a week to give birthday wishes and occasionally subs for Al Roker. Back in 1983, Scott got a card from someone asking for an on-air birthday wish and he complied. More cards and letters followed — first a trickle, then a flood. ### DISPUTES

Country Star Alleges Domestic Abuse

Country singer TANYA TUCKER has filed an order of protection against her former fiancé, whom Tucker claims has harassed and assaulted her. Tucker, 46, alleges that Jerry Laseter has harassed her before shows, grabbed her by the throat, given her a black eye and threatened her. The pair share a daughter, Layla Laseter, 5. The order was signed by a Williamson County, Tenn., judge on Thursday. Roberta Ann Carroll, Tucker's personal assistant, also filed an order of protec-

Beware of Home Inspection Pitfalls BEFORE You Put Your Home Up For Sale

According to industry experts, there are over 33 physical problems that will come under scrutiny during a home inspection when your home is for sale. A new report has been prepared which identifies the eleven most common of these problems, and what you should know about them before you list your home for sale.

Whether you own an old home or a brand new one, there are a number of things that can fall short of requirements during a home inspection. If not identified and dealt with, any of these 11 items could cost you dearly in terms of repair. That's why it's critical that you read this report before you list your home. If you wait until the building inspector flags these issues for you, you will almost certainly experience costly delays in the close of your home sale or, worse, turn prospective buyers away altogether.

In most cases, you can make a reasonable pre-inspection yourself if you know what you're looking for. And knowing what you're looking for can help you prevent little problems from growing into costly and unmanageable ones.

To help home sellers deal with this issue before their home is listed, a free report entitled "11 Things You Need to Know to Pass Your Home Inspection" has been compiled which explains the issues involved.

To hear a brief recorded message about how to order your free copy of this report, call 1-800-801-4908 and enter ID# 4401. You can call anytime, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Call NOW to learn how to ensure a home inspection doesn't cost you the sale of your home.

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You may have to take some quick and dramatic action to ward off a serious personal crisis. Never fear — you'll know it when the time comes.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your ability to focus on the positive will come in handy. Others may expect a bit much from you, however, during the evening.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're not one to say things others want to hear or do things others want you to do, simply to please them. You're out to please yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You may get mixed up a bit and interpret signals in such a way that leads you down a dangerous path — and, fortunately, right out of danger again in no time.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're in no mood to be slowed down or delayed. If it doesn't suit your needs or your tempo, you can do without it — and you will.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You want to be sure you don't simply end up watching the clock. Fill spare time with activities you can benefit from in the near future.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may find that you are ahead of schedule — surprise, surprise. What are you going to do with yourself? Don't make the mistake of taking time off prematurely.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) It's more important than usual that you anticipate the reactions of those around you before you say what you have to say.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You have some big plans, and if you do what your instincts tell you to do you'll reap some big rewards when the time comes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Follow-through is essential; don't drop the ball and leave others to pick up where you left off. Be responsible, thorough and proud.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You don't want to start the work week behind schedule. Tend to primary duties before heading down an unexplored path.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) It's about time you settled into a routine, which is both profitable and enjoyable — and you have the opportunity to do just that.
